1929 THE CITY OF CINCINNATI 1930

THIS INFORMATION is furnished in an effort to present a concise and complete picture of Cincinnati and its civic assets. No attempt is made to furnish a history of the city or to go into the reasons for its steady growth and development in a detailed manner—volumes have been written on these subjects, and we feel that justice could not be done in this limited summary.

Cincinnati, first known as Losantiville, was founded in 1788. The original settlement of twenty log cabins was incorporated as a Township in 1791, and as a town in 1802. In 1819, Cincinnati was chartered as a city. Proximity to raw materials, excellent transportation facilities and the character of the early settlers, have made it a manufacturing city and a center of distribution. In 1869 the first weather bureau in the United States was established here and the weather map, printed in the same year, was the first to appear in the nation.

Cincinnati, 550 feet above sea level, has a favorable climate. The average humidity is 69%, and the mean annual temperature is 55.2 degrees, with an average annual precipitation of 38.2 inches. A community endowed with natural agricultural and industrial wealth, the Queen City has ranked itself among the foremost cities of the world by the advancement of social refinements and the fostering of interest in education, science, literature and art.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

In 1926 a new charter was drafted and the city management form of government was inaugurated. A city manager, chief executive and administrative official of the city is selected by a City Council of nine members elected by the system of proportional representation. The mayor, presiding officer of Council and ceremonial head of the city, is chosen by the City Council from its members. In 1927 a revised charter went into effect, and during the same year an administrative code, designating the various departments of the city government and their respective functions and powers, was adopted.

Cincinnati is operating under a definite planning system at present. The City Planning Commission, in co-operation with the other departments of the city, controls the zoning and improvement of the city. A definite program for the future has been laid out. The economy and efficiency of the city government, due to co-ordination, careful supervision and loyalty, is reflected by a sound financial condition. The total tax rate for 1931 is $22.10 per thousand. Of this amount $9.10 is for the city, $4.65 for the county, 40 cents for the State, $5.30 for city schools and $2.65 for State schools. Maximum service to the public, at the lowest possible cost, has made possible numerous improvements within the past four years, notwithstanding large increases in appropriations for both physical and humanitarian purposes.

POPULATION AND AREA.

The city of Cincinnati covers an area of 72.2 square miles, in the densely populated south-west corner of Ohio in Hamilton County, with a river frontage of approximately 22.5 miles. For aerial location it is between the mouths of the Big and Little Miami Rivers, where they empty into the Ohio. Metropolitan Cincinnati, including Hamilton County and Kenton and Campbell Counties, Kentucky, has an area of 650 square miles. The natural growth of Cincinnati proper has created groups of smaller towns in these adjoining counties, and they have prospered by reason of commercial, educational and social advantages derived from their location within the area of a metropolitan city. The original city does not include them in its population.

The 1930 census of the United States Government shows Cincinnati proper has a population of 451,160, an increase of 49,913, or 12.4% over 1920 figures. According to advance figures, Metropolitan Cincinnati's population is 756,403. Approximately 80% of the nation's inhabitants live within 800 miles of the Queen City. The national center of population is 120 miles east of this city, and the industrial center of the entire United States is about 100 miles south-west. Cincinnati's trading area has a population of 1,017,265, an increase of 153,823 over 1920 figures.

HEALTH.

Cincinnati is a healthful city in which to live. An adequate and suitable water supply is an essential factor in the progress and welfare of any municipality. The city's water supply is obtained from the Ohio River at California, Ohio. By processes of purification, consisting of sedimentation, coagulation, filtration and sterilization, all harmful bacteria and sediment are removed. This purified water, safely used for any purpose, is carried to the main pumping station on Eastern Avenue through a tunnel $4\frac{1}{4}$ miles in length. It is then distributed over the city by approximately 1,000 miles of mains varying from 4 to 60 inches in diameter. There are nearly 250 miles of water mains outside the corporate limits of the city.

The water works finances are distinct and separate from other public funds. Water revenues pay for all operation, maintenance and improvement costs, as well as interest and sinking fund charges. Seventy-five million gallons of water are pumped daily from the Ohio River for the city's system, and it is supplied to consumers at the rate of 12 cents per 100 cubic feet. Monday, July 29, 1929, the consumption between the hours of 9 a. m. and 10 p. m. was at the rate of 117.27 million gallons.

The full capacity is 128,000,000 gallons per day, with a pressure of from 40 to 170 pounds. The city is noted for the efficient service and operation of this department. The California Water Works is rated as one of the best in the country, having been installed at a cost of over $11,000,000.

An efficient water supply would be of no value if the question of waste disposal were inadequately answered. The Department of Waste Collection keeps all streets, alleys, highways, markets, sewers and catch basins in a sanitary condition, and supervises the removal of snow and ice from the main thoroughfares and all other streets within the city limits as the city manager directs. It is responsible for the collection and disposal of garbage, ashes and refuse. Great progress has been made in this department, and motorized trailer units of the latest design are being installed. The business district streets are kept in a presentable and healthful condition by mechanical sweepers and motor-drawn flushers, operating nightly.

The sewage system in Cincinnati is excellent, and new sewers are being constructed at a rapid rate. During the year of 1929, $198,900.14 was expended in the installation of new lines by city contracts. In addition, $37,733 was expended for new lines laid by city forces. The total mileage of sewers in Cincinnati in 1929 was 6,487 miles, valued at approximately $3,350,428.

It is evident that the city's water supply and sewage system are in a large measure responsible for the low death rate in Cincinnati. There were 7,500 deaths in 1929, as compared with 7,583 in 1928. The infant mortality per thousand births recorded was 73.3 for 1929, as compared with 85.4 in 1928.

In order to keep Cincinnati in its enviable position it is necessary to have a well-organized and efficient Public Welfare Department. This department spent $27,325.63 in public relief work during 1929. Service was rendered to 13,064 individuals. The Board of Health, with its bureaus of inspection, social service and medical attention, has a record of unsurpassable efficiency.

THE CINCINNATI GENERAL HOSPITAL.

The Cincinnati General Hospital, located on Burnet Avenue, is considered the finest and largest municipal hospital of the pavilion type of construction. It consists of 24 buildings. The movement to move the General Hospital out of the basin of the city to a suburban location began in the early part of this century, and in 1909 the site was selected and the plans for the work on the hospital began. The first buildings were opened in 1912 and it was entirely completed and opened in 1915.

The hospital was built under the leadership of a specially appointed commission, of which Dr. Christian R. Holmes was the head. It cost approximately $4,000,000, and has 860 beds.

In 1929 there was a total of 15,544 patients admitted and 17,430 persons were treated. There were 1,846 major operations and 2,776 minor operations, 1,164 births and 1,493 automobile accident cases.

There is a daily average of 731 cases, at a cost of $3.10 per capita bed case in hospital. The hospital has introduced the use of oxygen tents in the treatment of pneumonia cases, which is proving of good value.

PARKS.

Cincinnati possesses outstanding scenic beauty and satisfies the growing human demand for open space, air, light and recreation in its many public parks. In the modern city the "vacant lot" is vanishing, streets are crowded with fast-moving traffic and downtown sections are solid masses of building. Trees and grassy plots are disappearing before the steady concentration of population. The topography of Cincinnati is ideal for the preservation of wooded parks. Every advantage of this natural resource is being taken by the Board of Park Commissioners. The parkway system of the city is developing rapidly, and will soon be unequalled in beauty and convenience.

At present the total area of park and playground property is 3,083.66 acres, 197.1 acres having been acquired in 1929. These parks vary in size from a fraction of an acre to 1,145.92 acres. The latter figure is the acreage of Mt. Airy Forest, the development of which is an outstanding accomplishment. Plans are being made to enlarge this park to 1,170.67 acres, making it one of Cincinnati's most valuable possessions. It is the first municipal forest to be established in this country. Mt. Airy Forest supplies coniferous and hardwood trees for the other parks throughout the city. Between 700 and 800 acres of the original forest had been cut over, and this has been reforested with native hardwoods, pines, etc. Roads, paths, trails, buildings and picnic centers are being developed in its wooded recesses.

The major parks in Cincinnati are unique in that no two are alike, either in topography or scenery. This applies not only to the parks overlooking the Ohio River, but to the interior parks. Alms (61 acres), Eden (187 acres) and Mount Echo (68 acres) Parks are on promontories 350 to 400 feet above the Ohio, and from each there is a commanding view of the river, the basin of the city and the adjoining Kentucky territory. Ault Park (225 acres) presents a panoramic view of the Eastern section of the city, the Miami Valley and the surrounding territory. Mount Storm Park (66 acres) offers a detailed picture of the Millcreek section.

CITY TRANSPORTATION.

The Cincinnati Street Railway Company is operated on the city-control service-at-cost plan. The rate of fare is determined by the exact cost of a car ride. Street car riders specify the quality and quantity of the service desired through the city government. Under this plan of operation the fare will be lowered as the number of revenue passengers is increased. After operating costs and a fixed return on invested capital have been deducted from the total earnings the surplus is used for improving the system or reducing the rate of fare. The city determines which course of procedure is to be followed.

The street railway system has 278 miles of track on which 700 cars are used. It has in addition 100 motor coaches operating over 110 miles of city streets. New cars and coaches, embodying all modern improvements, are being added each year. Approximately 2,500 men are employed in the operation and maintenance of the company's equipment. An extensive plan of rehabilitation has been practically completed in the last four years. New tracks have been added and about 75 miles of old trackage has been replaced. Extensive modernly equipped car repair shops have been constructed, and a new automatic supervisory control power system has been adopted.

A ticket fare of 8 1-3 cents went into effect November 1, 1925. Motor coach fares are 10 and 15 cents. No charge is made for transfers between street cars, but the payment of a 10-cent cash fare is required when securing transfers between street cars and motor coaches.

TELEPHONE SYSTEM.

The Cincinnati & Suburban Bell Telephone Company servicing Cincinnati and its metropolitan area, is replacing its present system of manual operation with an automatic dial control system. It will take ten years or more to complete the installation of this dial system in the 16 exchanges of the company. The Melrose and Jefferson Exchanges in Norwood, Ohio, serving the north-eastern section of the city's metropolitan area, are now operated by this mechanical method. By June, 1931, it is expected that the Cherry and Parkway Exchanges, formerly the Canal Exchange, will be changed over.

In addition to the installation of dial equipment in new exchanges, they must be equipped for an interchange of calls between those offices manually operated and those having the new automatic system. This plan prevents interruptions of service during the completion of the entire program. The special services, such as the handling of out-of-town calls, information, etc., will continue to be taken care of by operators.

GAS AND ELECTRIC UTILITIES.

Gas and electricity are furnished to Cincinnati by the Union Gas & Electric Company, a subsidiary of the Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation. Natural gas is piped through nearly 1,000 miles of mains from fields in Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia. A uniform supply of gas under the heaviest demands is insured by storage in eight gas holders, having an aggregate capacity of 11,200,000 cubic feet and by three manufactured gas plants.

Two large generating plants supply electricity for the city. The Columbia Power Station, at Columbia Park, Ohio, on the Ohio River, a few miles west of the corporate limits of Cincinnati, was erected at a cost of $15,000,000. It was designed for expansion to an ultimate capacity of 400,000 to 500,000 kilowatts. The other large plant is the West End Station on the Ohio River at Front and Rose Streets. The Miller's Ford Station, supplying Dayton, Ohio, and vicinity, is interconnected with these systems.

In the early part of January, 1930, the Union Gas & Electric Company moved into new quarters at Fourth and Main Streets. The general offices and appliance display rooms of the company occupy the entire 17 floors of this architecturally outstanding building.

BANKING.

The first bank was founded in Cincinnati by the Miami Exporting Company in 1807.

To-day metropolitan Cincinnati has 16 National banks, 39 State banks and trust companies with an aggregate capitalization of $27,440,000; surplus and undivided profits of $42,332,072, and resources of $454,257,462. The debits to individual accounts in 1929 totaled $5,546,102,452.

On April 14, 1866, the various banks of Cincinnati met and organized the Cincinnati Clearing House Association. The daily clearings have increased until in 1929 the total amounted to $3,910,555,730.

The savings deposits in the Cincinnati (corporate limits) and Norwood banks totaled $128,484,608 on January 1, 1930.

INDUSTRY.

Cincinnati is one of the leading manufacturing cities in the United States. It holds this position because it offers the manufacturer a central position from which to select raw materials such as coal, iron, wool, cotton, tobacco and lumber, good sites, convenience to markets and advantageous transportation facilities.

The larger industries in the Queen City include soap, machinery, woodworking machinery, machine tools, metal products, aeroplanes and accessories, printing and publishing, meat packing, radio, clothing, jewelry, shoes, engineering specialties and furniture. Cincinnati is represented in 103 of approximately 333 major types of industry listed by the United States Census Bureau.

A government estimate for Cincinnati made in 1927 lists 1,972 establishments, with 83,592 as the average number of wage earners. The payroll figures were $118,250,159 and the value of products $700,211,152.

BUILDING CONSTRUCTION.

The total number of building permits for 1929 was 24,023, with an estimated cost of $36,124,122. Of this amount the residential permits totaled $12,898,160. In the first nine months of 1930 there were 16,054 permits issued, with an estimated cost of $32,627,512.

Among the recently completed buildings and improvements in Cincinnati are: Christ's Hospital, $1,500,000; Carew Tower (including site), $33,000,000; Walnut Hills High School, $1,500,000; Oyer High School, $800,000; Kenwood Country Club, $425,000; the Jewish Hospital addition and new Nurses' Home, $1,500,000; the Hamilton County Tuberculosis Hospital addition and Nurses' Home, $780,000; the Union Gas & Electric Co. Building and the Cincinnati & Suburban Bell Telephone Building.

Two of the recent outstanding architectural achievements are the Carew Tower, a 48-story building at Fifth and Vine Streets, and the new Union Passenger Terminal, which, according to present plans, will be completed in 1934.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Cincinnati's public schools are under the administration of a Board of Education, consisting of seven members, elected at large for terms of four years. The high schools are in charge of a Union Board of High Schools, composed of the Board of Education, five trustees of the Woodward Fund and two trustees of the Hughes Fund. Under these boards there is an organization of over 2,000 superintendents, assistant superintendents, directors, principals and teachers.

The school system of Cincinnati provides opportunity for public education from the kindergarten to the graduate school of the University. This is possible through a general system, comprising 54 elementary grade schools, five junior high schools, six high schools, 11 vocational schools, eight special schools and a College of Education, organized in co-operation with the University of Cincinnati. There is an evening organization or night school system, consisting of two high schools, 11 elementary schools and five vocational schools.

Lunch rooms, in which meals are furnished at cost, are found in 49 schools. Motion picture machines are in operation in many schools, 27 having portable machines and 25 having standard machines. The Public Library has library rooms in several schools, with trained workers in charge, which serve as community library stations.

Medical service in the schools is supplied by the Board of Health, which employs 17 school physicians and 40 nurses. Free dental clinics are conducted in 10 schools, with about 30 operators provided by the Board of Education. All teachers give attention to safety and health instructions. Much attention also is given to school savings and training in thrift.

Parent and Teacher Associations are attached to practically all schools, and there is a general federation of all these organizations for the entire community in a very large and important body, which has been of much service to the schools.

In the field of music the schools are intimately associated with the life of the city. A series of four symphony concerts for young people is given each year by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, to which the pupils of the schools are admitted at nominal cost. In the biennial May Festival the children of the elementary schools have participated for many years. Usually this participation involves the singing of a composition occupying one of the evenings of the festival.

In the high schools there are offered seven courses of study, most of which prepare students for admission to college, and all of which involve the elements of general cultural training and specific preparation for future vocations. The vocational schools provide two-year courses in training for the automotive trades, building trades, commercial service for boys and girls, electrical trades, mechanical trades, plumbing trades, printing trades, sewing trades, tailoring trades and retail selling. These vocational schools are organized under the provisions of the Smith-Hughes law, and receive Federal and State support.

The evening activities comprise organized school work in the elementary grades, in Americanization and citizenship, the vocational fields and in the academic and commercial work of the high school. The night high schools are in session 120 nights in a year, two hours each night. The regular course of five years in length, completion of which entitles the student to a first-grade high school diploma. Such graduates are admitted to regular standing as students in the University of Cincinnati.

The vacation activities include summer academic schools, vacation schools and vacation playgrounds. The vacation schools are for children under 14 years of age, and offer handiwork, stories and the like.

The special departments of art, household arts, industrial arts, music, penmanship and physical education comprise directors and corps of teachers who supervise and direct instruction in these various fields, in both the elementary grades and in the high schools. Close co-operation is had with the various institutions of the city, such as the Art Academy, the Symphony Orchestra, the May Festival, the College of Music and Conservatory of Music. In this way the inspiration of these fine organizations is brought to bear upon the work of the schools. There is also constant co-operation with the University of Cincinnati.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

The parochial school system of the archdiocese is one of the most thoroughly organized in the United States, and extends from the kindergarten through the college level. The school system has its headquarters in Cincinnati, but the organization covers 27 counties in South-western Ohio, with a total enrollment of over 40,000 elementary, 8,104 high school and 4,300 college pupils, and 1,800 teachers and professors. Slightly more than half of these are in Cincinnati and Hamilton County.

On the college level there are within the corporate limits of the city, Xavier University, with departments of arts and science, commerce, education and law, and an enrollment of 1,839 students and 140 professors; Mt. St. Joseph College for Women, with 275 students and 28 professors; and Sacred Heart College for Women, with 112 students and 35 professors. For the education of its ministry the archdiocese also maintains Mt. St. Mary Theological Seminary in Norwood, with 214 students and 11 professors, and St. Gregory Preparatory Seminary, with 177 students and 14 professors. In addition, the Franciscan and Passionist Orders maintain seminaries for their members, and have at present 225 students of college level with 21 professors. For the preparation of teachers for the elementary and high schools an Archdiocesan Teachers' College is maintained, with an enrollment of approximately 350 students and a faculty of 24 professors. This makes a total of 3,192 students of university and college grades within the limits of the city proper. All these institutions are recognized by the State Department of Education and the accrediting agencies and empowered to give the usual degrees.

All the high schools are likewise approved by the State Department of Education, and most are members of the accrediting agencies. The high school program in force since September, 1928, has attracted nation-wide attention as a pioneer and model effective organization. It is the result of a reorganization begun in 1926, in which the formerly existing parochial and commercial schools were eliminated entirely and a comprehensive and thoroughly modern high school system, as understood by the best present-day educational theory, was called into existence. A uniform curriculum, offering a choice of seven separate programs, plus the usual free electives, is established. Education for the high school level is on the district plan, and only first grade (four-year) schools are maintained. There are three district schools for boys, six for girls, one for colored pupils of both sexes and three institutional high schools within the corporate limits of Cincinnati. Instruction in all these schools is free, as is also the case on the elementary level. There are, in addition, eight private (tuition) high schools and academies. In the county outside of Cincinnati there are two additional central high schools, and three institutional high schools. Among them is St. Rita School for the Deaf, whose high school department is the only school for deaf pupils in the country which is recognized on a par with schools for hearing pupils. The enrollment in the high schools of the county in 1930-31 is 4,995, with 314 teachers.

There are within the corporate limits of Cincinnati 64 parochial, five institutional and eight private (tuition) schools of kindergarten-elementary level. Three of the parochial schools are for colored children. In Hamilton County, outside of Cincinnati, there are 23 additional schools. The enrollment in these schools is 26,543, with 826 teachers. Textbooks are uniform throughout, both in the elementary and high school grades. Ability grouping, school libraries, with supplementary service by the Public Library, civic and vocational leagues, parent-teacher clubs, supervised study and socialized work are characteristic. Medical services, including an inspectional "roundup" of beginners, are supplied by the City Health Commission, which also supplies the permanent services of a dental clinic and the year-round preventive services of the district physicians.

New building operations during the past year, besides those mentioned above, include four new parochial school buildings, the establishment of two new schools and the enlargement of four others at a cost of more than $600,000.

UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI.

University of Cincinnati was founded in 1870. Dean Schneider, now president of the college, has been identified with the university for more than a quarter of a century, and has brought to the institution an international reputation as the home of a foremost system of engineering training—the co-operative or Cincinnati plan—under which students spend alternate periods in school and in industry. In the last ten years the student enrollment has grown from 3,145 students to a total of more than 11,000.

In 1819 the first Cincinnati college was started, the same year marking the founding here of the Medical College of Ohio. The university's College of Law, the only surviving department of the old Cincinnati College, still operates under the original college charter. The Medical College of Ohio is now part of the University College of Medicine.

The present university campus occupies 43 acres on Clifton Avenue, south of Burnet Woods Park. A new million-dollar library is now in use. The building program calls for the erection of a College of Education Building, Convocation Hall, Biology Hall, Physics College of Medicine and the Christian R. Holmes Memorial Hospital are on the General Hospital grounds, approximately one and a half miles from the main campus. Other university buildings are located on the Observatory grounds, Mt. Lookout. Funds for the several university halls have been provided through private donations and city bond issues.

The city of Cincinnati is responsible for the support of the university, but is called upon to bear only one-third of its annual expenses. The remainder comes from students' fees and endowment income. Reduced fees are offered citizens of Cincinnati in all courses of the university, following out the original idea of enabling young men and women to secure college training at home. There is also a large non-resident enrollment.

Members of the University Board of Directors are appointed by the Mayor of Cincinnati, subject to the approval of Council, for nine-year terms.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOLS.

In addition to the public and parochial schools and the University of Cincinnati, a number of privately owned commercial colleges, which rank with the best in the country, are found in Cincinnati. Here the student may receive instruction in accounting, book-keeping, shorthand, typing, salesmanship, secretarial science, etc., at a nominal cost.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The Cincinnati Public Library provides for the book needs of every community in Cincinnati and Hamilton County. It has a system of 33 branch libraries, 37 deposit stations, 68 branch agencies, 19 school libraries, 29 class-room libraries and two book trucks, in charge of a trained staff. Sixty-eight schools and 26 villages in Hamilton County are served by the library book trucks.

Since its establishment in 1853, the Public Library has built a collection of rare and valuable books. The books on local history, science, industry, art, genealogy and business are especially complete. During the last year 60,097 volumes were added, making a total of 876,224 volumes in the system. The library has 80,833 pictures and prints, 50,000 lantern slides, 120,788 pamphlets and subscribes for approximately 1,114 magazines and newspapers.

In conjunction with the Cincinnati Reading Society for the Blind, the Public Library has a collection of over 10,000 books and periodicals for blind readers. These are printed according to various systems, in order to accommodate differently trained readers. A large number of volumes in the revised Braille are being secured. Railroad companies transport these books free of charge to blind readers in all sections of the country.

The Federal Government has used the Cincinnati Public Library as a depository for over 40 years. Governmental publications, about 40,000 in number, public documents and patent reports, are filed in the Enquirer Building, 3,387 square feet of this rented floor space being necessary to relieve crowded conditions in Cincinnati's main library building.

An annual training course is conducted in order to secure trained young women for the library's service. The class meets five days a week for six months. Entrance to these classes is by competitive examination. Many applicants are university women, but high school graduates are eligible.

In addition to the above services there are the added advantages of a general reference department. A Readers' Bureau is provided for adults who are continuing their education through definite courses of reading.

CINCINNATI INSTITUTE OF FINE ARTS.

On March 22, 1927, the Cincinnati Institute of Fine Arts was formed as a corporation not for profit under the laws of the State of Ohio. The purpose stated in the articles of incorporation is:

"To further the musical and artistic education and culture of the people of Cincinnati and to that end to maintain and support schools of art, music and drama, art museums, symphony orchestras, and conduct other similar activities in connection with the fine arts; to hold and manage endowment funds for the support of similar activities * * * *; to afford financial or other aid to other corporations not for profit as now or hereafter may be engaged in furthering the purpose above named * * * *"

The institute began with a substantial endowment. The generous gift of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft, presented to the institute shortly after its corporation, consisting of their residence property on Pike Street, a priceless collection of paintings, porcelains and other works of art and the sum of $1,000,000, was augmented by an additional sum of $2,500,000 raised by subscription in Cincinnati. It is impossible to enumerate in this small space the various contributors, whose united efforts have made possible this outstanding civic asset.

THE CINCINNATI MUSEUM AND ART ACADEMY.

The Cincinnati Museum Association, which was incorporated in 1881, marked the culmination of the efforts of many notable Cincinnatians to create in Cincinnati an art center which would be known throughout the artistic and cultural world. In the earliest days of the settling of Cincinnati, artists and those interested in art tried to establish galleries. Among the first of note was Frank's Gallery of Fine Arts, in 1828. This was an effort of several artists. There were a number of other galleries or associations undertaken throughout the intervening years, until finally, in 1881, the Museum was incorporated. The Museum was dedicated in 1868, the first addition was the Emma Louise Schmidlapp Building in 1907, then the Ropes Gallery, in 1910. This year three new wings were opened—the Mrs. Mary M. Emery Wing, the Mary Hanna Wing and the Herbert French Wing.

The Museum contains besides paintings and sculpture, collections of primitive art, textiles, ceramics, metal work, wood and ivory carvings, costumes, arms and armor, musical instruments and a library of approximately 7,500 volumes. Mention should be made of the Conner collection of original silver, the Longworth collection of India shawls, the historic collection of Rookwood pottery, and the very recent collection of playing cards given by a local manufacturing company. Some of the best paintings of Frank Duveneck, a Cincinnati artist, are also hung in the gallery. The Blum Memorial ranks equal with the Duveneck Room. There is an extensive collection of casts of Greek sculpture and carved ivory from the Roman to the Renaissance period, and the collection of American archaeology is noteworthy.

The Art Academy of Cincinnati was originally the outgrowth from a bequest to the city of Cincinnati by Charles McMicken in 1858, following which the McMicken School of Design was opened in 1869, afterward becoming a part of the McMicken University of Cincinnati. The School of Design received further support from Joseph Longworth during his life and remained a part of the university until 1884, when it was transferred to the Cincinnati Museum Association, into whose hands Nicholas Longworth, in pursuance to the unfulfilled intention of his father, placed an endowment fund of $371,600, for the support of what then became the Art School of Cincinnati. Later on Reuben R. Springer and David Sinton provided a building for the school, which was dedicated in November, 1887, and became the Art Academy of Cincinnati. It has professional training in drawing, painting, modeling and designing which is second to none in the United States. It is one of the oldest and best known art schools in the country. There are scholarship funds which enable students of ability to pursue their studies in the school who might otherwise be financially unable to do so. A number of internationally known artists have gone out from this school after taking the intensive training. Cincinnati and this school lays claim to three immortal names among the generations of artists—Blum, Twachtman and Duveneck.

MUSIC IN CINCINNATI.

"Music in Cincinnati" is best taken up under the following headings:

Cincinnati Music Hall—The inception of Music Hall was due to Mr. Reuben R. Springer, who contributed, in 1875, the present site. Mr. Springer contributed in all $195,000. A great organ was installed in the building at a cost of $32,695. In addition to the above gifts, an endowment fund was given by Mr. Springer, and it now is worth more than $100,000. The hall was completed in 1878, and with improvements added from time to time, the total cost has been $670,838. The organ was remodeled in 1923 at a cost of $45,892, and could not be replaced under present conditions for $100,000. The hall is used for all municipal gatherings, such as operas, festivals, political meetings, expositions, orations, symphony concerts and various public meetings.

May Festival—The first May Festival was held in May, 1873. The festival consists of great choruses of adults and children and the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra. The value of the festivals does not lie alone in the pleasure they give to their biennial audiences—they are great training schools for choral singing, and the inclusion of large choruses of school children, inculcating a love and respect for music throughout the city's population.

Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra—In 1895 the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra Association was founded, with Mrs. William Howard Taft as president and a Board of Directors of 15 women. The orchestra has grown from a nucleus of 40 men to its present personnel of over 100 musicians. The first conductor was Mr. Frank Van der Stucken, who was followed by such eminent men as Stokowski, Kuemwald, Ysaye and the present conductor, Mr. Fritz Reiner. A most efficient orchestra has been organized, which is now ranked with the greatest orchestras in the world. No orchestra of this size can be supported by its own income, and must depend on guarantee funds. A popular endowment is contemplated by the Institute of Fine Arts.

College of Music—Cincinnati is celebrated for its music and its people are looked upon as critical audiences. Such a position is brought about by ample instruction in music. In 1878 the teaching of music on a sound basis in Cincinnati was inaugurated by the establishment of the College of Music. It is not operated for profit, and for 50 years has trained young people in the execution and appreciation of music of the highest standing. It has an enrollment of over 1,300 students, and gives a series of concerts for the public each year.

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music—The Cincinnati Conservatory of Music was founded in 1867, and is, therefore, the oldest school of music in Cincinnati, and one of the three oldest institutions of its kind in the United States. Miss Clara Baur, its founder, originally used the ideas and standards of the most important conservatories of Europe as a basis. Since her demise these ideas and ideals have been carried forward by Miss Bertha Baur, niece of the founder, now President and Director. She has brought the Conservatory to a position of prominence and great service to the public of Cincinnati, and recognized all over the United States as of first rank.

Miss Baur, together with the other stockholders, desiring to perpetuate the Conservatory, gave, in the summer of 1930, all of her interest therein to the Cincinnati Institute of Fine Arts, under whose auspices the Conservatory will hereafter be conducted as a non-profit institution.

The faculty of the Conservatory comprises more than 100 well-known teachers, among them being many musicians of international reputation. Each year new instructors are added to meet the constantly growing student demand. At present the Conservatory has the most brilliant names on the faculty list in the history of the 62 years of its existence.

Instruction is offered in every branch of instrumental music, voice culture and theory, as well as dramatic art, modern languages, opera, aesthetic and ballet dancing. A large staff of exceptionally capable instructors is provided for courses in public school music, so much in present demand.

The Conservatory is affiliated with the University of Cincinnati. Combined courses under teachers from these two institutions are accredited on certificates, diplomas and university degrees. Graduates may therefore secure positions without further examination. It is fully accredited by the State Department of Education and has the right to confer the Bachelor of Letters degree upon graduates from the dramatic art department.

During both winter and summer sessions a series of carefully balanced and highly interesting programs are given by the artist faculty. These concerts are open without fee to all of the student body and to the public of Cincinnati.

It has both a Symphony Orchestra and a Junior Orchestra. The symphony group is composed of 70 of the most talented young musicians in the school and is conducted by an artist member of the faculty. This orchestra gives a series of five concerts each year. A recent project has materialized in the organization of a Symphonic Band, with a capable conductor from the faculty. The Conservatory also has a splendid chorus, which appears annually in several programs before the student body. A noted member of the artist faculty is the leader of this organization.

The Cincinnati Conservatory maintains an efficient Department of Opera. Students are prepared to specialize in opera, learning roles and building their repertoire. The Conservatory is also affiliated with the leading opera directors, impresarios and concert agencies both in Europe and America. Graduates are advantageously placed in the professional field as soon as they have completed their courses.

ROOKWOOD POTTERY.

Rookwood pottery is now in its fifty-first year. Devoted to ceramics as an art, it is internationally famous for its fine achievements and exceptional originality. Mrs. Storrer founded Rookwood in 1880 as a place where a new pottery could be made, using primarily the clays of this region and entrusting to local artists and artisans the shaping and decorating of this pottery in a manner of their own. The results have been a new type of pottery rare in beauty, unique in design and financially within the reach of everyone.

The show rooms of the institution are open to the public, and attain the proportions of a museum in the variety of the beautiful pottery displayed. Every half hour throughout the day parties of visitors are guided through the plant to see the processes, from the operation of the throwing wheel to casting, glazing and firing in the kilns.

CINCINNATI CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Outstanding accomplishments of major importance to the city of Cincinnati and its citizens, dominate the record of progressive, tangible and valuable services carried out in the program of work of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

Doubtless the most prominent event was the celebration of the completion of the canalization of the Ohio River, being the realization of a project inaugurated by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce 35 years ago through the formation of a valley-wide organization, namely, the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, which has been fostered by the Chamber of Commerce since its very inception.

The general plan of the celebration consisted of a series of celebrations throughout the thousand miles of the Ohio River, a flotilla starting at Pittsburgh and continuing to Cairo. The outstanding feature was the dedication of the monument commemorating the enterprise of two of the pioneers in the movement, John L. Vance and Albert Bettinger.

President of the United States Herbert Hoover formally dedicated the monument, and after his address, proceeded with the flotilla to Louisville, where he again addressed the people of the United States through a nation-wide radio hook-up on the subject of the improvement and development of inland waterways. It was probably one of the most widely advertised events that has occurred in years and has given a new impetus to internal waterway improvements.

Another event of great importance was the commencement of actual excavation of the new railroad passenger terminal and the purchase of $5,500,000 worth of property. This figure does not include the millions spent by the railroads on freight terminals which are being built in accordance with joint plans of the engineers. To those industries which were affected by the terminal project in regard to the necessity of acquiring new sites, the Chamber of Commerce rendered every assistance.

Other important results in transportation matters also were effected. Through hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission, favorable report was procured on reduced rates from Cincinnati to cities west of the Mississippi River. For many years Cincinnati shippers were suffering under the handicap of paying full combination of local rates to Western points, and the introduction of the continuous through rate enables them to compete with Chicago, St. Louis and other metropolitan centers on a more favorable basis.

Favorable reports were also obtained which will assist Cincinnati shippers competing with those on the Atlantic seaboard to the territory to the south-west, where heretofore the low rates enjoyed by Eastern shippers have given them a distinct advantage. A reduction of 12% on Ohio intra-state rates on live stock was also procured through the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Approval was given by the Post Office Department on the extension of the present Cincinnati-Louisville Air Mail Line, originally promoted by the Chamber of Commerce, from Louisville through Nashville, Memphis, Little Rock, Dallas and Fort Worth, extending to Los Angeles and Mexico, giving Cincinnati an additional transcontinental line operating through the South. The committee also worked on a line from Detroit to Atlanta through Cincinnati, which will connect with Florida, Cuba, Central and South America. It also urged the extension of the line from Cincinnati through Huntington and Charleston and thence to Virginia and the Carolinas.

Important literature issued by the Traffic Department in 1929 included a comprehensive Air Mail Guide, a Motor Truck Guide, Package Car Guide and a River Guide. During the year approximately 8,000 advices were sent out to shipping members of the Chamber of Commerce relating to proposed freight rate changes, advices on claims, Interstate Commerce Commission decisions and other information.

Continued industrial expansion is shown by a survey of the Industrial Department in that there were 51 new industries, the payrolls amounting to approximately $1,500,000, in addition to the 73 expansions of local industries whose payrolls also showed increases in proportion. This represents $13,000,000 in plant construction, in addition to many thousands of dollars invested in equipment and raw materials.

A survey of the railroad development in the West End in order to obtain switching facilities for industries located in that section, was made in co-operation with the Terminal Company, the railroads and city officials, while a survey of labor, districts and types in the city nears completion. The Chamber has also taken up, through its Industrial Department, the question of negro employment, and is securing much valuable data on this subject.

The Convention Department, working under a new plan of management for handling visiting delegations to their greater satisfaction and convenience, secured an increased number of conventions in 1929 over previous years. One hundred and fifty conventions were brought to the city during the 12 months, with an approximate attendance of 78,000 persons, who spent the estimated figure of $2,300,000 during their stay in the city. Moreover, approximately 200,000 people attended local expositions and other meetings here. The Convention Department also secured a large amount of lineage in publicity, this appearing in newspapers, trade journals and national magazines. In addition, more than 30,000 pieces of promotional literature on Cincinnati were distributed.

Reform of the antiquated tax system of Ohio has been a major feature of the Chamber's program during 1929, working in co-operation with the Ohio Chamber of Commerce and assuming the details of the campaign in the south-western district of the State. The amendment was adopted by a majority of 200,000, of which Cincinnati produced 72,000. Cincinnati is well represented through members of the Chamber of Commerce on the Governor's Committee to work out legislation under the authority of the new amendment.

The establishment of a Department of Conservation in the State of Ohio at the last General Assembly was largely due to the efforts of the State and National Parks Committee of the Chamber. Vigorous work on the part of the Postal Affairs Committee was in no small degree responsible for reduction in postal rates at the last session of Congress, and further progress is being made along these lines.

Plans were completed the later part of the year by the Domestic Distribution Department for sending field representatives into the Cincinnati trade territory to render merchandising services to retail stores, deliver addresses to retail merchants' associations in the interest of more fully developing the territory to the betterment of both the retailer and the Cincinnati wholesale market. The department also organized the Sales Executive Council, the initial membership roster comprising more than 100 representatives from Cincinnati wholesale and manufacturing concerns. Speakers trained in specialized sales work addressed the various meetings of this group. The Cincinnati, official publication of the Chamber of Commerce, issued monthly, underwent impressive changing style, make-up and editorial content, resulting in larger advertising revenue and a greater reader interest, and becoming known as the outstanding local business publication.

The Soliciting Schemes Department investigated 209 schemes and answered over 1,900 inquiries. As a result Cincinnati is freer from fake solicitors than ever before and their numbers are constantly being reduced. Not one of the nationally operated fake schemes were attempted in Cincinnati during the year, and the amount of money saved which would have been lost on illegitimate enterprises made an impressive total. As an example, on one scheme alone two local firms were each able to retrieve $1,000 which they had been led to contribute. The department worked with the Police Department, Post Office, Secret Service and other Governmental law enforcement agencies to accomplish these results.

The organization of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce is composed of 12 departments, exclusive of executive office, rendering valuable services in all lines of civic, industrial and commercial development. These departments are manned by an efficient personnel and are here listed for your convenience and reference: Research, Soliciting Schemes, Civic Affairs, Membership and Subsidiary Organizations, Reference Library, Scale Testing, Weighing and Sampling, Convention, Domestic Distribution, Industrial, Foreign Commerce, Transportation and Dining Room.

CINCINNATI AUTOMOBILE CLUB.

The largest civic organization in the Ohio Valley is the Cincinnati Automobile Club, which has a membership exceeding 20,000. The club is located at Central Parkway and Walnut Street, on the first two floors of the American Building. It is said to have the most efficiently laid-out headquarters in the country.

Representing the American Automobile Association in this territory, the Cincinnati Automobile Club is the annual host to many thousands of motorists. It has worked with the city government and has contributed materially to the broad development of streets and highways in the city. It has steadily pioneered the expansion of highways and the elimination of grade crossings, even though these improvements be many miles distant from the city. It is the fifth largest automobile club in the world. Its various departments and bureaus comprise an extensive legal department and automobile theft prevention bureau, roadside divisions, a touring bureau, a safety division, an automobile license department, a Highways and Streets Committee working with the consulting engineer and an active Legislative Committee, charged with studying legislation and taxation effecting motorists. An emergency road service department is active day and night.

BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU.

Cincinnati's Better Business Bureau is organized and supported by business men of the community for the protection of the public and legitimate business against fraudulent promoters, dishonest advertising and unfair business schemes. Its services on matters of fact are free to the public, but no opinions or forecasts are given.

The city's bureau is one of more than 40 in the United States. Business supports them, but receives its benefits indirectly. Two of the chief aims in this organization are the suppression of wild-cat investments and misleading, inaccurate advertising by conducting detailed investigations and placing the resultant facts before the public.

COMMUNITY CHEST.

The Community Chest and Council of Social Agencies was organized for the purpose of placing social work and its financial support on a soundly organized basis. It is made up of a Central Budget Committee formed in 1915 to raise money simultaneously for all agencies that had joined, and a council which had for its object the study of social work methods and the co-ordination of services performed. These two organizations were consolidated in 1922, and since that time have undergone various changes and improvements.

Cincinnati was one of the first cities in the country to put in practice the theory that the functions and finances of social work should be taken care of by one institution. At present there are about 330 such organizations in the United States, which raise approximately $75,000,000 annually. In its 1930 campaign the Cincinnati Community Chest raised $2,056,000, and it has received in all of its 16 campaigns over $18,000,000 from contributors.

The 1930 campaign was carried on by 6,000 volunteer workers, who received no compensation for their services. There were approximately 95,000 contributors. The cost of collecting, auditing and administering the funds of the chest has averaged about 1.1% of the total payments made on pledges. The money raised is apportioned among member agencies devoted to the care of the aged, child welfare, family welfare, character building, citizenship, health, etc., by an Executive Budget Committee.

The Chest has its headquarters in the building contributed by citizens at 312 West Ninth Street.

RED CROSS.

The Cincinnati and Hamilton County Chapter of the American National Red Cross has its headquarters at 312 West Ninth Street. This organization receives no financial support from the Government. The scope and effectiveness of its services depend upon the support given by the people through membership annually renewed.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, the local chapter spent $4,724.85 in public health nursing in the county and $4,993.08 was spent in the same period for health instruction. The county nursing instructive program consisted of 198 infant and child welfare clinics, with an attendance of 2,318; 1,474 visits to schools and the examination of 7,021 pupils, and 10,118 home visits. During these clinics and visits 5,408 children received diphtheria anti-toxin, with the gratifying result of no deaths from diphtheria or smallpox in the county during the year just ended. Red Cross classroom courses were held in home hygiene, care of the sick, first aid and life saving.

The Junior Red Cross Chapter filled and shipped 1,575 Christmas boxes for relief abroad, 5,000 hand-painted menu covers were forwarded for the Christmas dinners of men on United States naval vessels in home and foreign ports. Garments and toys were made and distributed to local families.

The chapter was materially aided by volunteer service during the year. Approximately 525 pages of Braille were made and forwarded to Washington for the use of the blind readers in all sections of the country. Knitted wear was sent to United States Veteran Hospitals and 150 "handy bags" were sent as Christmas remembrances to soldiers in the Canal Zone.

In addition to the above activities, $11,144.77 was used in rendering service to veterans of the World War and their families.

CINCINNATI AS A CONVENTION CITY.

The advantages of central location and a network of fine transportation facilities that are placing Cincinnati in the front rank of industrial communities make the Queen City an ideal center for visitors and organized groups of visitors. The city offers a Southern hospitality tempered by Northern earnestness. Its scenic beauty, its wide facilities for recreation and entertainment and its efficient civic organizations all go to make Cincinnati a great convention city.

Large and convenient hotels are situated in strategic locations. The business district has nine hotels, having a total of 3,750 rooms. A new hotel in the process of construction will add 750 rooms to this number. Several of the larger hotels have committee rooms, meeting halls and private dining rooms, which are placed at the disposal of conventions and organized gatherings as their headquarters. Suburban hotels on hill-tops, a few minutes from the center of the city, are able to give excellent accommodations as well as the "pause that refreshes." Large and modernly equipped apartment hotels are available.

The Convention Department of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce has a trained staff, competent to render advice and assistance on all problems of organized visiting groups. This service is furnished free of charge. According to figures furnished by this department, there were 72 State and national conventions, with a registered attendance of 48,545, in Cincinnati during the first six months of 1930. The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic was held in the Queen City this fall.

In addition to an excellent system of scenic parks and recreation fields, Cincinnati has wide facilities for the amusement of visitors. There are numerous ball diamonds, tennis courts and indoor and outdoor swimming pools. There are 71 theaters, two municipal golf courses, three amusement parks and two race tracks.

OHIO RIVER TRAFFIC.

The Ohio River has been completely canalized and periodical interruptions of navigation due to low water are practically eliminated. A system of 49 locks and dams keeps the water level at a nine-foot stage over a distance of nearly 1,000 miles. Ice piers, ice breaks and ice harbors minimize the obstacles to winter traffic. The river that played such an indispensable part in the opening of the Ohio Valley is beginning a new era in transportation with the inauguration of year-round traffic.

The first step toward the improved Ohio River of to-day was taken by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce in 1895, when it called a meeting and organized the Ohio Valley Improvement Association. This group was pledged to foster canalization and to provide a navigable channel for commercial river travel. The Chamber of Commerce called a convention in 1905 and the National Rivers and Harbors Congress was organized for the purpose of making river development a national policy.

Steady progress was made, and the complete canalization of the Ohio River from Pittsburgh to Cairo was celebrated October 19 to 25, 1929, by a program under the auspices of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association. At the dedicatory exercises, President Hoover unveiled a granite shaft honoring the pioneers in this great work. This dignified memorial commands a beautiful view of the Ohio River from a promontory in Eden Park.

Terminals for the transfer of goods from river to rail and rail to river are located at suitable points on Cincinnati's waterfront. The equipment of these plants varies according to the type of freight for which they were designed, but collectively these transfer stations are able to handle commodities of all descriptions.

In the year 1928-1929 the total tonnage volume of commodities carried by the Ohio River was increased from 20,938,267 to 21,955,148 tons. In 1924, before the development of a nine-foot stage, the tonnage volume was 10,866,683. The improved Ohio River has more than doubled its advantages to industry as a carrier of raw materials and finished products. The total value of all types of freight carried in 1929 was $192,308,472.

RAILROADS.

Cincinnati, an important railroad center because of its strategic location as a gateway to the South, has 19 trunk lines radiating to all sections of the United States. These units are operated by nine systems, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Big Four, the Louisville & Nashville, the Southern, the Norfolk & Western, the Erie and the Cincinnati Northern. A large percentage of the commerce of the North-Central and Southern States passes through the Queen City. Cincinnati is the only municipality owning a steam railway. This line, 325 miles in length, and built at a cost of $30,000,000, is now an integral part of the Southern Railway System, its lessee.

Railway facilities in and out of the city will be greatly increased by the opening early in 1931 of a $10,000,000 Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad bridge over the Ohio River and the completion in 1934 of Cincinnati's new Union Passenger Terminal in the Millcreek manufacturing section, a short distance west of the city's business and financial district. The terminal project will have a total cost of approximately $75,000,000.

Actual construction work on this new terminal was started August 12, 1929. The completed plant will provide all modern facilities for the handling of passengers, express and mail. The passenger terminal and express buildings will be constructed by the Terminal Company and the mail building will be provided by the Federal Government. Track space has been planned to accommodate daily a maximum of 150 arriving and 150 departing trains. In addition to the above facilities there will be yards for the storage and servicing of equipment, a large locomotive round-house, a power-house, machine shop, commissary building and a yard office building. The approach to the station building will consist of three traffic lanes. There will be an exterior lane for street cars, an interior lane for buses and a central lane for taxicabs. In front of the station parking space has been allotted to private passenger vehicles.

Bald Knob, a hill-top overlooking the terminal site, is being razed to provide 6,000,000 cubic yards of filling material, of which 2,500,000 cubic yards are already in place. To date approximately $3,000,000 has been spent on preliminary construction. Other major items required for the project are 200,000 cubic yards of concrete, 400,000 feet of concrete piling, 22,000 tons of structural steel and 75 miles of new track work.

All railroads entering the city will use this new depot as their local passenger terminus. The seven railroads which are parties to the terminal project are the Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern, Big Four and Norfolk & Western systems.

In addition to the above facilities in the process of construction, Cincinnati has in operation a terminal warehouse for the concentration and distribution of freight. This plant has 175,000 square feet of cold storage and 525,000 square feet of general storage space, and is equipped for a maximum unloading capacity of 50 cars per day. Practically every type of domestic commodity can be taken care of. Railroad cars enter the building and are unloaded under cover.

The Cincinnati Terminal Warehouse is less than ten minutes by truck from the city's wholesale and retail districts. It is operated by a private corporation.

AIR TRANSPORTATION.

Cincinnati has four airports, one municipally owned and three privately owned. Lunken Airport, the municipal field, was privately owned and operated previous to its acquisition by the city in the fall of 1930. It is situated almost at the confluence of the Little Miami and Ohio Rivers, three miles by airline from the heart of the city, and five miles by road. The total area owned by the city is approximately 1,100 acres, of which 500 are developed. The landing field has 4,000 feet of effective landing area in any direction. Full 24-hour service, including repairing, storage, fueling and washing of aircraft, is available. Located within the city limits, the airport has all public utilities—motorized city fire and police patrol equipment reach it by a three-minute run. A radio directional beacon station and a complete weather bureau at the field are operated by the United States Government.

The purchase of 870 acres adjoining the original Lunken Field was made possible by a $500,000 bond issue approved by citizens of Cincinnati for the purchase and development of a municipal airport. The port as a whole constitutes one of the largest consolidated areas for municipal air field purposes in the country. In addition to sufficient space for two full-sized aviation fields, there is an abundance of land which can be leased to private industries designed for the manufacture of airplanes and airplane accessories. Several such plants are already in operation.

The privately owned airports are the Watson Airport, 100 acres, at Blue Ash, Ohio, just 12 miles from the Cincinnati Post Office; the Crosley Airport at Sharonville, and the Western Hills Airport and Motor Service, on the Cincinnati-Louisville Pike, west of Cheviot.

ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN.

The Cincinnati Zoological Garden is regarded as one of the finest of its kind in America, not only because of its fine collection of animals, birds and reptiles, but because of its natural topography, which lends itself readily to beautification. This fact has been taken advantage of to make the Zoo an outdoor museum of natural history, in which hundreds of specimens of trees and shrubs, many of them of rare varieties, have been planted. The trees are all labeled with data concerning them.

The Zoo was opened in 1875 and has been a popular Cincinnati institution ever since. It is visited by approximately 800,000 people each year. In area it includes about 70 acres.

The collection includes about 400 animals, 1,000 birds and 100 reptiles, a total of 1,500 specimens.

A new and very popular feature introduced during the past summer was a monkey island. This consists of an island built in the rear of the monkey house, surrounded by a moat filled with water and connected with the monkey house by a tunnel under the water. The island gives the monkeys complete outdoor freedom, except that they are unable to leave the island.

A hippopotamus was born at the Zoo during the past year, and is said to be the first of this species to be born anywhere in the Middle West, and one of the very few ever born on American soil. The husky baby has been one of the centers of attention and interest for Zoo visitors.

A popular feature at the Zoo each summer is a ten weeks' season of opera. For this a company of first-class artists is assembled from the leading opera companies of America.

Other summer attractions at the Zoo include band and orchestral concerts, the clubhouse, where dinner-dance music is provided as one of the attractions; the Zoo dansant, "Danse in Russland," ice shows, Kiddieland, fun house, merry-go-round, pony track, free Punch and Judy shows and other entertainment features.

The Zoo is open every day in the year, and can be reached by several street car and motor bus lines.

DOMESTIC MAIL MATTER.

First-Class Mail Matter includes written matter, typewritten matter and carbon copies thereof, whether sealed or unsealed; postal cards (Government cards), post cards (private mailing cards) and all sealed matter, except third and fourth-class matter under certain conditions. Imitations of typewriting produced by mimeograph, multigraph, etc., are classed as first-class mail matter unless mailed at post office window in 20 or more identical copies. The postage rate on first-class matter is two cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce. The rate on Government postal cards is one cent each, the price for which they are sold. The rate on private mailing cards (post cards) is one cent each.

[Post cards (private mailing cards) are cards manufactured by private persons consisting of cardboard substantially like the Government postal cards, not exceeding in size $3\frac{3}{8}$ by $5\frac{1}{8}$ inches, nor less than $2\frac{1}{4}$ by 4 inches. Larger mailing cards bearing the words "post card" or "private mailing card" are chargeable with first-class rate 2 cents for each ounce. Larger cards not bearing such words will be third-class matter— $1\frac{1}{2}$ cents for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces, or first-class rate if they contain writing.]

Business Reply Cards and Envelopes—Firms may mail double reply cards, or inclose single reply cards, or reply envelopes, with other matter, at the regular postage rates, and the reply cards and envelopes can be returned to them without prepayment of postage by the addressee, provided the firm will guarantee to pay for their return at the rate of 2 cents for cards and 3 cents for envelopes. Firms or persons desiring this privilege should make written application to the postmaster and await instructions.

Air Mail Fees—Five cents for the first ounce or fraction thereof and 10 cents for each additional ounce or fraction thereof.

Second-Class Mail Matter consists of periodical publications entered as second-class matter. When mailed by the publisher or news agents the special zone rates apply. When mailed by the general public the transient second-class rate is one cent for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces. When copies are not complete the third or fourth-class rate applies according to weight.

Third-Class Mail Matter includes books, catalogs, circulars, merchandise, miscellaneous printed matter and all mailable matter not included in first or second classes, weighing eight ounces or less. Over eight ounces all such matter is fourth-class matter.

The rate of postage on third-class matter is $1\frac{1}{2}$ cents for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces up to and including eight ounces, except that the rate on books, catalogs, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants not exceeding eight ounces in weight is one cent for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces. Miscellaneous printed matter may not accompany books and catalogs at the lower rate.

Special Rate for Bulk Mailings—Identical pieces (contents must be identical) of third-class matter in quantities of not less than 20 pounds or not less than 200 pieces with pre-canceled stamps affixed, or under the permit system, when the pieces are separated to States and Cities and tied in bundles properly labeled, are subject to postage at the rate of 12 cents a pound or fraction of a pound. However, books and catalogs are subject to postage, under these provisions, at the rate of 8 cents a pound or fraction of a pound. Provided, however, that the rate of postage on third-class matter shall be not less than one cent per piece. Persons desiring this privilege should make written application to the postmaster and await instructions.

Post office definition of book or catalog is printed matter bound in that form having 24 or more pages including the covers.

Fourth-Class Mail Matter (Parcel Post) consists of books, catalogs, printed matter, merchandise and all mailable matter weighing over eight ounces and not over 60 or 70 pounds according to zone, not included in first class. All such matter weighing over eight ounces is subject to zone rates according to weight and distance as indicated in table below.

Special Handling Fees: (in addition to zone rates) Fourth-Class Matter only—Up to 2 pounds, 10 cents; over 2 pounds but not more than 10 pounds, 15 cents; over 10 pounds, 20 cents.

This service accords parcels same treatment in dispatch, transportation, and delivery as first-class mail matter. (See special delivery fees if you want parcels specially delivered after arrival).

Special Delivery Fees: (In addition to regular postage) Letters and first-class parcels—Up to 2 pounds, 10 cents; over 2 pounds but not more than 10 pounds, 20 cents; over 10 pounds, 25 cents.

This Publication Is The Product of A Member of

Thus assuring you the ultimate service that skill and care can produce in the way of City Directories or other reference media.

The following "Standards of Practice," adopted at the inception of the Association of North American Directory Publishers in 1898, and strictly adhered to over the years, is your guarantee of satisfactory Directory Service.

The publisher of a Directory should dedicate his best efforts to the cause of business uplift and social service, and to this end pledges himself:

1. To consider, first, the interest of the user of the book.
2. To subscribe to and work for truth, honesty and accuracy in all departments.
3. To avoid confusing duplication of listings, endeavoring to classify every concern under the one heading that best describes it, and to treat additional listings as advertising, to be charged for at regular rates.
4. To increase public knowledge of what Directories contain; to study public needs and make Directories to supply them; to revise and standardize methods and classifications, so that what is wanted may be most easily found, and the Directory be made to serve its fullest use as a business and social reference book and director of buyer and seller.

5. To decline any advertisement which has a tendency to mislead or which does not conform to business integrity.
6. To solicit subscriptions and advertising solely upon the merits of the publications.
7. To avoid misrepresentation by statement or inference regarding circulation, placing the test of reference publicity upon its accessibility to seekers, rather than on the number of copies sold.
8. To co-operate with approved organizations and individuals engaged in creative advertising work.
9. To avoid unfair competition.
10. To determine what is the highest and largest function of Directories in public service, and then to strive in every legitimate way to promote that function.

SERVICE

It is the highest heat producing coal mined.

It is practically smokeless and sootless and produces less ash and clinkers than any other coal.

It gives greater satisfaction because it requires less attention and holds fire longer.

It is a natural cokeing coal and this places its merits far above other fuels for domestic use.

We would appreciate an inquiry so that we may discuss with you your requirements.

It Is a Well Known Fact

That thousands of dollars worth of goods are sold annually through buyers consulting the Classified lists of the City Directory. How important it is then to be represented under every possible heading that a buyer would look up when in search of goods in your line.
