INTRODUCTION

WILLIAMS DIRECTORY CO., publishers of the Cincinnati City Directory, present to subscribers and the general public, this, the 1941 edition. The Honor Roll, a new feature, marks this edition.

Confidence in the continued growth of Cincinnati's industry, population and wealth, and in the advancement of its civic and social activities, will be maintained as sections of this Directory are consulted, for the Directory is a mirror truly reflecting Cincinnati to the world.

The enviable position occupied by WILLIAMS' Directories in the estimation of the public, has been established by rendering the best in Directory service. With an unrivaled organization, and having had the courteous and hearty cooperation of the business and professional men and residents, the publishers feel that the result of their labors will meet with the approval of every user, and that the Cincinnati Directory will fulfill its mission as a source of authentic information pertaining to the city.

Six Major Departments

The six major departments are arranged in the following order:—

THE HONOR ROLL, a new feature, in the preface of the Directory, is an alphabetical list of the Cincinnati commercial, industrial and professional concerns that have demonstrated their confidence in the City Directory as an advertising medium, and thereby insured its regular publication.

THE MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT, pages 12 to 16, on white paper, presents lists of city, county, state and federal officials; post office, public school and court Directories; statistical review; historical sketch; and manufacturing, trade and civic surveys.

THE ALPHABETICAL LIST OF NAMES of residents and business and professional concerns is included in pages 25 to 1350, on white paper. This is the only record in existence that aims to show the name, marital status, occupation and address of each adult resident of Cincinnati, and the name, official personnel, nature and address of each firm and corporation in the city.

THE DIRECTORY OF HOUSEHOLDERS, INCLUDING STREET AND AVENUE GUIDE, on pink paper, covers pages 1351 to 1669. In this section the names of the streets are arranged in alphabetical order; the numbers of the residences and business concerns are arranged in numerical order under the name of each street, and the names of the householders and concerns are placed opposite the numbers. The names of the intersecting streets appear at their respective crossing points on each street. Features of this section are the designation of tenant-owned homes and the designation of homes and places of business having telephones.

THE BUYERS' GUIDE, beginning opposite page 1670 and separately paged from 1 to 124, on goldenrod paper, contains the advertisements of leading manufacturing, business and professional interests of Cincinnati. The advertisements are indexed under headings descriptive of the business represented. This is reference advertising at its best, and merits a survey by all buyers eager to familiarize themselves with sources of supply. In a great commercial and industrial center like Cincinnati, the necessity of having this kind of information immediately available, is obvious. General appreciation of this fact is evidenced by the many reference users of this City Directory service.

THE CLASSIFIED BUSINESS DIRECTORY is included in pages 1795 to 1933, on yellow paper. This department lists the names of all business and professional concerns in alphabetical order under appropriate headings. This feature constitutes an invaluable and indispensable catalog of the numerous interests of the community. The Directory is the common intermediary between buyer and seller. As such it plays an important part in the daily activities of the commercial and professional world. More buyers and sellers meet through the Classified Business Directory than through any other medium.

Municipal Publicity

The Directory reflects the achievements and ambitions of the city, depicting in unbiased terms what it has to offer as a place of residence, as a business location, as a manufacturing site and as an educational center. To broadcast this information, the publishers have placed copies of this issue of the Directory in Directory Libraries, where they are readily available for free public reference, and serve as perpetual and reliable advertisements of Cincinnati.

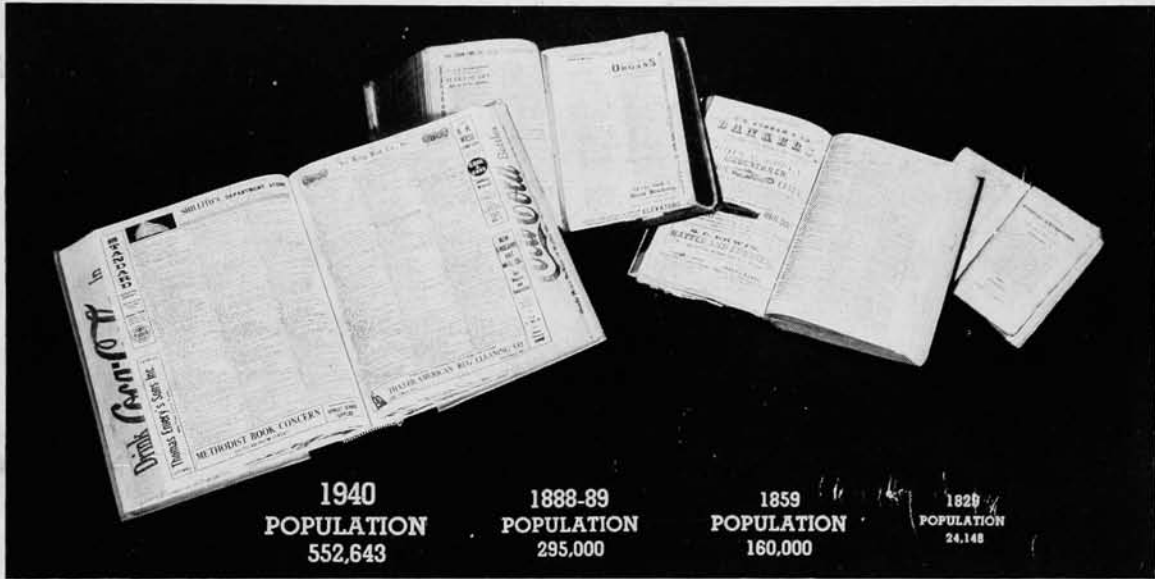

The Cincinnati Directory Library

Through the courtesy of the publishers of the Cincinnati City Directory, a Directory Library is maintained in their offices at 705 Reakirt Bldg., for free reference by the general public. This is one of more than 500 Directory Libraries installed in the chief cities of the U. S. and Canada by members of the Association of North American Directory Publishers, under whose supervision the system is operated.

A BRIEF SKETCH OF THE HISTORY OF THE CITY

Furnished by the Industrial Research Department, Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce

The founding of Cincinnati and its early growth were both a part of the great westward movement which was made possible by the defeat of the French under Montcalm on the Plains of Abraham in 1759. That event opened up all of the country formerly controlled by the French. By 1780 the early Kentucky settlements had developed into prosperous and permanent communities.

In 1878, the year that the famous ordinance providing for a government of the Northwestern Territory, as it was then called, was passed, a brave frontiersman, Benjamin Stites, of Pennsylvania, took the leading part in what led to the settlement of Cincinnati.

The founding of Losantiville was the direct result of the combined efforts of Mathias Denman, of New Jersey, and several leading Kentuckians. John Cleves Symmes, who had journeyed as far as Limestone, had sold to Denman a tract of about 740 acres opposite the mouth of the Licking River. For that tract, Denman paid five shillings per acre in Continental script. It was on that land that Denman located what is now the greater part of the business section of Cincinnati. Its boundaries included that portion of Cincinnati about as follows:

Skyline View of Cincinnati

Stites was a flatboat trader. On one of his trading expeditions, made from Limestone to the village of Washington, where friends from his native town had settled, a band of Indians had committed some depredations and stole some valuable horses belonging to the settlers. Stites was selected as the leader of a party to pursue the Indian horse-thieves. The Indians were never overtaken nor the horses recovered, but the expedition revealed to Stites some of the wonderful scenery and rich, fertile soil of the Miami country and he formed a resolution then and there to found a settlement in the vicinity of what is now Cincinnati.

Miami Purchase

Stites was neither prominent nor wealthy. He solicited the aid of John Cleves Symmes, at that time a member of Congress from Trenton, New Jersey. Symmes commenced negotiations Aug. 29, 1787, for the purchase of 2,000,000 acres, but the survey included ultimately only about 600,000 acres. It comprised all the territory between the two Miami Rivers as far north as the site of the present town of Lebanon.

Symmes in the meantime began to advertise lands and make grants conditional on the completion of his contract with Congress. He promised to give lot Number 29 in each township for the purposes of religion. Schoolmasters capable of discharging their duties were promised the free use and benefit in each township of lot Number 16. One complete township was set aside for the establishment of a college. Purchasers had the privilege of selecting their own sites and were to pay $1 per acre subject to reduction for bad land and incidental charges.

The Founding of Columbia

While Symmes was delayed, Benjamin Stites was active in establishing the first settlement in the Miami country. Symmes had sold Stites 10,000 acres in the southeastern part of his purchase bordering on the Little Miami and the Ohio rivers.

On Nov. 16, 1788, Stites and his party left Limestone. For two days they floated down the Ohio and on the 18th arrived at the mouth of the Little Miami, and thus began the settlement of Columbia, the first in the Little Miami country. Columbia is now an eastern suburb of Cincinnati. Cincinnati proper yet remained to be founded.

The Founding of Losantiville—Later Known as Cincinnati

Men composed the first boat-load of adventurers, who on Christmas Day, 1788, left the little settlement of Limestone, Kentucky, and for four days floated down the Ohio to a spot at the mouth of the Licking River. It was here they founded the town of Losantiville, afterwards to become CINCINNATI.

"From the river running north on Broadway to about where Burnet Ave. would intersect Liberty St., thence west a mile along Liberty St. to a point 200 feet west of Central Ave., thence south to the river to a point a little east of where Park St. continued, would intersect the river, thence along the river to Broadway. The original Denman tract comprised what is now the entire Section 18 and Tractional Section 17."

Denman's object was to establish a ferry. In selecting the site, he showed a remarkable foresight and knowledge of the geography of the Miami country and adjoining territory. He foresaw that Cincinnati was a natural gateway to the south and north and occupied an important position in relation to river travel from Pittsburgh to St. Louis.

Denman associated with himself in the purchase, Col. Robert Patterson and John Filson, of Lexington, Kentucky. They were in reality the founders of Cincinnati, with the addition of Israel Ludlow, who later joined in the enterprise.

Denman was in no sense a pioneer. He was a speculator in western lands. He neither lived on his purchase nor did he remain in the West more than a short time after the founding of Losantiville.

Col. Robert Patterson, a representative Kentuckian, was a bold frontiersman and an able executive, perhaps the ablest of the founders, and it was he who was regarded as the leader of the settlement more than any other member of the party.

John Filson was a schoolmaster. He published the first book on the history of Kentucky and was the original biographer of Daniel Boone. It was Filson who gave the new settlement its name of Losantiville.

Israel Ludlow was appointed by the U. S. Government to survey the Miami purchase. He entered the employ of John Cleves Symmes. Ludlow is of particular interest because he was the only one of the original founders of Losantiville to remain within the vicinity, and because of his connection with the beginnings of other important settlements in the Miami country. In 1790 he established Ludlow Station; in 1794 he laid out the city of Hamilton, and in 1795 he marked out the streets of Dayton, Ohio. Ludlow died in January, 1804.

A fort was completed at Losantiville by Major Doughty with 140 men, Dec. 29, 1789, and named Fort Washington in honor of our first President. The following December, Lieut. Wm. Henry Harrison arrived with 300 soldiers and assumed command. Gen. Josiah Harmer later assumed command, but, defeated in his campaign against the Indians, he was succeeded by Gen. St. Clair in 1791, who, following his disastrous defeat, was in turn superseded by Gen. "Mad Anthony" Wayne.

Naming of Cincinnati

Gen. St. Clair, while in command of Fort Washington, changed the name of Losantiville to Cincinnati in honor of the Society of Cincinnati, of which he was a member. That society was composed of former officers of the Revolutionary War and was the leading one of its time.

The First Church

The first church was erected in Cincinnati in 1790 and stood near what is now the northwest corner of 4th and Main streets. It was there that Israel Ludlow was buried. Today there are 523 churches in the city.

Cincinnati was incorporated as a village in 1802, and became a city in 1819. The present form of government was adopted in 1925.

The First Newspaper

The first newspaper to be printed in the Miami country was started in Cincinnati, Nov. 9, 1793, while the village was still the object of Indian raids. The name of that paper was "The Sentinel of the Northwest Territory." It was a four-page sheet and its subscription price was $2.50 per year. Today there are three daily newspapers and several special news publications.

The Early Settlers and Residents of Cincinnati

Cincinnati was founded and developed by Americans of English descent. They laid out the town, established the first schools and churches, organized the local government and inaugurated the city's commercial and industrial life. Practically no other influence affected the life of Cincinnati during the first half century of its existence.

The population of Cincinnati in 1810 was 2,540, which grew to 24,831 in 1830 and 46,338 in 1840. The 1930 U. S. Census showed the population as 451,160, with a metropolitan population of 759,000. The 1940 U. S. Census preliminary report shows a population of 452,852.

About 1840, due to disturbances abroad, there was a heavy immigration of Germans composed of refugees from Prussian oppression. The unification of the German Empire stopped that emigration. Consequently, we find that the population in 1860 was 161,044, and in 1870 it had grown to 216,239.

Following the discontinuance of German immigration, Cincinnati's growth came to practically a standstill, and in 1880 it possessed a population of only 255,139. From that figure, it rose to 296,908 in 1890, again to meet with retardage at the opening of the 20th Century.

It is interesting to observe at this time that Cincinnati's population is in the neighborhood of 89% native-born white and possesses in proportion to population, perhaps the smallest percentage of foreign-born of any metropolitan city of the U. S.

One thing that influenced German immigration to Cincinnati rather than to some of the other cities of the U. S. which were then in process of growth, was the fact that the first Germans arriving in Cincinnati wrote back to their friends and kinfolk across the ocean informing them that the Ohio Valley was another Rhine Valley in appearance and fertility. All the hills to the north of Cincinnati during the 1870's and 80's were covered with vineyards, and Cincinnati at that time was the greatest wine-producing center in the U. S. It maintained that reputation up until the latter part of the 19th Century, when large pork-packing industries developed, and toward the latter part of the century, Cincinnati ranked as the greatest pork-packing center in the world.

The Early Industry and Commerce of Cincinnati

The first effort to encourage manufacturing in Cincinnati was toward the close of the War of 1812. The toast at the Cincinnati Fourth of July celebration in 1814 was "Our manufacturers; a still, small voice, but persistent and energetic." In that year the Cincinnati Steam Mill was established. It manufactured flour, cotton and woolen goods and flaxseed oil. In 1814, Cincinnati also had four cotton-spinning establishments, 91 wool-carding machines, a steam sawmill and a sugar refinery. By 1820, Cincinnati's population had exceeded that of Pittsburgh. Its exports continued to be largely agricultural. Flour, pork and whiskey took the lead. The Miami country was the wheat and corn belt of the West at that period.

As time passed, cattle and hogs commenced to come in steadily from the surrounding countryside and particularly from Kentucky and as far distant as Tennessee. Cincinnati gradually was developing a great slaughtering and packing industry. The surplus corn that was not fed to the hogs continued to be turned into whiskey, and the surplus fruit into brandy. Beer, porter, cheese, soap, candles, hemp spun yarn, lumber and furniture became articles of export.

Gradually there developed an important gun-making industry, the manufacture of hardware of all kinds, tanneries, rope-manufacturing establishments, another sugar refinery, and later on, wagon, coach and carriage works.

With the coming of the steamboat, Cincinnati had the opportunity of doing business with the Mississippi Valley and exporting products through the New Orleans gateway. By the same method, imports arrived for Cincinnati and were distributed to the surrounding territory. Through the New Orleans gateway great quantities of pork, flour and whiskey were exported, and cotton and sugar imported.

Today the leading industries and products are foundry and machine-shop products, machine tools, men's clothing, meat-packing, soap, printing and publishing, radio receiving sets, electric refrigerators, automobile bodies and parts, chemicals, and office furniture.

The Effect of Steamboat Navigation

It is interesting to know that the preliminaries for the beginning of steamboat navigation on the Ohio River were arranged in connection with a wedding journey. Nicholas J. Roosevelt and his bride, in an especially-constructed flatboat, floated from Pittsburgh to New Orleans in May, 1809, and on that journey, Mr. Roosevelt endeavored to determine the practicability of steamboat navigation. He left Pittsburgh for New Orleans on Jan. 28, 1811, on the newly-built "Orleans" and landed at Cincinnati two days later. Despite the earthquakes of the period, he reached New Orleans in safety. It was due largely to the influence of steamboats that Cincinnati attained the growth it achieved and the prosperity it enjoyed during the 19th Century. At the zenith of steamboat travel, Cincinnati was the greatest city west of the Alleghenies. With the completion in 1929 of the canalization project providing a year-round navigable channel of nine feet, the river has shown renewed activity.

Canals

The first canal of the Middle West was proposed in 1815 by Dr. Daniel Drake and was to be opened from Cincinnati to Hamilton. The subject of transportation in those days was a serious one and the foresighted men of that period recognized the fact that the growth of Cincinnati must be measured in terms of transportation.

The construction of canals in Ohio caused a rapid development of the interior of the state, and greatly increased the commerce of Cincinnati. The Miami and Erie Canal was completed to Toledo in 1845. Transportation was not established upon the Whitewater Canal until 1848, too late to be of service, as railroad-building had commenced in the Middle West. Today this means of transportation has disappeared.

Construction of Highways

For many years the highways leading out of Cincinnati were mud roads, inaccessible through the greater part of the year. About 1833 commenced the era of building toll roads, familiarly termed "turnpikes." The principal roads out of Cincinnati were built within a few years after that date. These roads cheapened the cost of transportation and greatly increased the profits of farmers, who were thus able to bring their products and drive their herds to town. The rapid development of motor transportation in recent years has again made the highway an important factor in transportation. Cincinnati is the central point of a network of major highways, being served by seven Federal highways and six State routes.

Construction of Early Railroads

The first negotiations for the building of a railroad connecting the South with Cincinnati began in 1835. Consideration was then given to the construction of a road from Paris, Kentucky, to Cincinnati. The idea was favored by Dr. Daniel Drake and other leading citizens of Cincinnati, who, with a larger view, proposed extending the contemplated roads from Cincinnati to Charleston, S. C. For many years this subject was under discussion. Meetings were held in Cincinnati and cities to the south, but one thing or another prevented until the termination of the Civil War, when Cincinnati finally decided in the face of many obstacles to build a railroad, provided a majority of the voters declared in favor of the construction by the City of such a road and voted the necessary bond issue. This matter was finally decided by a special election, June 26, 1869, and the municipally-owned railroad, the Cincinnati Southern, was completed in 1880. This road, 339 miles in length, extending from Cincinnati to Chattanooga, is still owned by the City and is operated under lease by the Southern Railway. It was built at a cost of $30,000,000, and now represents an asset to the city of approximately $75,000,000 to $90,000,000 depending on various estimates of valuations placed upon it. Such was the history of Cincinnati's first railroad and the first built by any municipality in the U. S. Previous to that, however, the Little Miami Railroad extended from Cincinnati to Xenia, Ohio, a distance of 85 miles. Despite handicaps and obstacles of various kinds to be overcome, the builders of that road persisted, and on Aug. 1, 1846, the first train ran from Cincinnati to Springfield. By 1848, Cincinnati had railway connections with Lake Erie at Sandusky, and in 1850 it was possible to go by rail from Cincinnati to Columbus via Xenia.

In May, 1857, the Ohio & Mississippi Railroad was completed from Cincinnati to St. Louis, and the Marietta & Cincinnati Railroad, extending from Marietta to Loveland, Ohio, was completed in May, 1857, with connections for Cincinnati. Indirectly, Cincinnati, by 1859, had rail connections with Chicago, which was then but a small city.

Cincinnati Union Terminal

For years Cincinnati has been adequately served by seven of the major trunk-line railroads of the U. S.: The Baltimore & Ohio, the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Louisville & Nashville, the Southern and the Norfolk & Western. These seven railroads used five separate passenger terminals. This arrangement was awkward, inconvenient and oftentimes embarrassing.

Cincinnati needed a new terminal station and a leader qualified to sell a union terminal project.

The work of the new terminal was started in August, 1929, and completed on March 31, 1933, at a total cost of $41,000,000, which included the purchase of ground and readjustment of railroad facilities. It covers an area of 287 acres; 94 miles of track and 22 distinct buildings were constructed. This station can accommodate daily 17,000 people and 216 trains—108 trains in and 108 out. The train concourse is 450 feet long and 80 feet wide, and there are eight station platforms which extend 1,600 feet.

The Cincinnati Union Terminal is considered the finest in America.

Music and Art

At a very early period in the history of Cincinnati, cultural influences manifested themselves and left an indelible imprint upon the population that has continued to this very day.

The first singing school in Cincinnati was established twelve years after the settlement, when the population numbered only 750. The first music was published in Cincinnati in April, 1850, and consisted of a new and valuable collection entitled "The Western Harmonist" by John McCormick.

Singing societies began to make their appearance in Cincinnati from 1819 on, and the visit of LaFayette in 1825 provided the needed stimulus for the organization of a symphony orchestra. The orchestra was under the direction of Joseph Tosso, one of the famous violinists of his day.

The first Saengerfest of America was held in Cincinnati in 1849. It was a great festival of song participated in especially by the German people. That event was the forerunner and inspiration of the present Cincinnati May Festivals. The biennial May Festival began its work in 1873, and due to the success that met its efforts, the need of a permanent home and music hall for Cincinnati so manifested itself that by 1875, plans were already under way, and through the generosity of Reuben R. Springer, Music Hall was constructed.

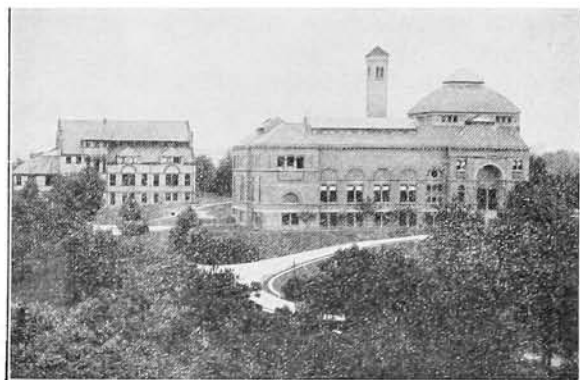

The College of Music was founded Oct. 14, 1878, and was handsomely endowed by Mr. Springer. The first director of the College was the late Theodore Thomas, who was also for many years director of the Cincinnati May Music Festival.

The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra was organized in 1872, and its pioneer name was the "The Philharmonic Orchestra." Its early concerts were held in Pike's Opera House, and in 1894 it consisted of 50 pieces.

In 1896, the orchestra was increased to 70 men, and Pike's Opera House being no longer available, the concerts were transferred to Music Hall, and that remained the home of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra until 1911, when through the generosity of Mrs. Thomas J. Emery in the construction of a new building for the Ohio Mechanics Institute, she designated the auditorium, since known as Emery Auditorium, as the future home of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra. In 1936 the orchestra transferred to Music Hall.

The Cincinnati Art Museum was one of the first founded in America, as was also the Art Academy, which directly adjoins it.

Cincinnati Art Museum

Rookwood Pottery, which produces beautiful specimens of ceramic ware, was established at the wane of the 19th Century, near Eden Park.

Cincinnati, in its University of Cincinnati, built the first municipally-owned university, which has continued its growth and expansion until at the present time its enrollment totals thousands.

The foregoing is a brief history of Cincinnati, touching only upon its high spots. More detailed information may be secured by consulting various histories and reference books at any of the well-equipped libraries in Cincinnati and other large cities.

Imitations of typewriting produced by mimeograph, multigraph, etc., are classed as first-class mail matter unless mailed at post office window in 20 or more identical copies. The postage rate on first-class matter is three cents for each ounce or fraction of an ounce when addressed for other than local delivery; 2 cents for each ounce when addressed for local delivery. The rate on Government postal cards is one cent each, the price for which they are sold. The rate on private mailing cards (post cards) is one cent each.

[Post cards (private mailing cards) are cards manufactured by private persons consisting of cardboard substantially like the Government postal cards, not exceeding in size 3 9/16 by 5 9/16 inches, nor less than 2 3/4 by 4 inches. Larger mailing cards bearing the words "post card" or "private mailing card" are chargeable with first-class rate 3 cents for each ounce. Larger cards not bearing such words will be third-class matter—1 1/2 cents for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces, or first-class rate if they contain writing, or 1 cent each, if mailed at the Special Bulk Mailing Rate, as shown below.]

Business Reply Cards and Envelopes—Firms may mail double reply cards or inclose single reply cards, or reply envelopes, with other matter, at the regular postage rates and the reply cards and envelopes can be returned to them without prepayment of postage by the addressee, provided the firm will guarantee to pay for their return at the rate of 1 cent each in addition to regular rate. Firms or persons desiring this privilege should make written application to the postmaster.

Air Mail Fees—Domestic: Six cents for each ounce or fraction thereof.

Second-Class Mail Matter consists of periodical publications entered as second-class matter. When mailed by the publisher or news agents the special zone rates apply. When copies are not complete the third or fourth-class rate applies according to weight.

Third-Class Mail Matter includes books, catalogues, circulars, merchandise, miscellaneous printed matter and all mailable matter not included in first or second classes, weighing eight ounces or less. Over eight ounces all such matter is fourth-class matter.

Miscellaneous printed matter may not accompany books and catalogs at the lower rate.

Special Rate for Bulk Mailing—Identical pieces (contents must be identical) of third-class matter in quantities of not less than 20 pounds or not less than 200 pieces with precanceled stamps affixed, or under the permit system, when the pieces are separated to States and Cities and tied in bundles properly labeled, are subject to postage at the rate of 12 cents a pound or fraction of a pound. However, books and catalogs are subject to postage, under these provisions, at the rate of 8 cents a pound or fraction of a pound. Provided, however, that the rate of postage on third-class matter shall be not less than one cent per piece.

Persons desiring this privilege should make written application to the postmaster.
